Key material of the fifties and the sixties, the natural rattan cane makes a remarkable comeback: all our Vintage rattan furniture reissued as new, using KOK's original designs, just as they were made in the 60s.

Compact and versatile, this furniture is linked to leisure, holidays, relaxation, the outdoors, in short, a relaxed and playful style.

Rattan « sticks », thin rods fixed to the structure are giving the shape of the armchair, all in unpeeled rattan. They characterize the typical style of the 60s: light, openwork, robust products, with their unmistakable light golden brown colour and the darker knots of the rattan vine.

The RIVIERA collection reflects the easy going life during summer with elegance and glamour. Natural rattan cane associated with deep colors of velvet refering to the Miami Beach spirit of the 70's.

Rattan is growing in the indonesian tropical jungle. It is a pole with a hard skin and a smooth heart which allows to create light and strong seats.

Small brass caps are enhancing the glamorous and sophisticated effects.

The cushions are made in France with Bultex foam assuring an incomparable comfort.

The SAIGON collection has been inspired by models from the 50's when the weaving pattern became simpler playing with transparency and delicacy.

Classical shapes are fully woven by hand with thin laces of natural rattan skin.

The bark delicately removed from the rattan cane is woven into plenty of weaving combinations.

The rattan skin remains a living material, aging little by little into a unique tone.

KOK MAISON, whose history goes back to more than a century, is here only reconnecting with its past.

This fair return of things is today dictated by a major trend of relocation and environmental considerations.

Willow is a fast growing plant (one year cycle only), very hardy, which grows everywhere in Europe. It is implemented (harvesting, peeling, weaving) with very simple tools, but a lot of elbow grease.

Towards the end of the 19th century, rattan was popular in all conservatories. Its ability to bend suited perfectly the Art Nouveau intricate patterns and arabesques. These old iconic models are emblematic of the french « art de vivre ».

The hazelnut-coloured rattan underlines the two-tone effect typical of the collection.

The weaving combines rattan skin laces with two red resin stripes - RAL 3003 - together with nice brass nails put one by one by hand as originally.
